OFFERS NO ONE CABINET PLACE

And Has Not Yet Settled On Personnel.

AWARDING PORTFOLIOS HARD

President-Elect Finds Field of Possibilities Is Constantly Widening.

WILL PREPARE HIS ADDRESS

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 5.—President-elect Wilson to-night made it clear that nobody in the United States knew, as yet, who was going to be in his Cabinet, or what would be the program he would suggest in Congress. He said he had not offered a single Cabinet portfolio to anyone and had as yet reached no conclusions as to plans for the extra session of Congress.

Mr. Wilson stated that, while he had canvassed a variety of subjects and had talked over many names with Democratic leaders, he had not given a definite intimation in any direction either as to his selections or what his course with respect to legislation would be. He indicated, however, that he expected the extra session would not be devoted exclusively to tariff making, and said he would, in a special message, specify some of the subjects upon which he would like to see legislation enacted.

The President-elect admitted that he was finding the task of Cabinet making very difficult. He said he would delay any announcements until he could name his entire Cabinet.

"I don't like to make scattered announcements," he said, "and it may be that I will not announce the Cabinet until the last minute. At times I hear something about a man whom I had not considered, that makes me prick up my ears and want to know more about him. The field of choice is constantly widening."

It was suggested to Mr. Wilson that if he delayed his announcements until the last minute some of the men might find themselves embarrassed for time in winding up their business affairs.

"Oh, I probably shall choose men who are footloose," said the Governor, "and then, even if they should need time to wind up their affairs, they could be sworn in March 4 and spend a little time on it after that."

He indicated that he intended to occupy as much of his time as possible between now and March 4 in canvassing the Cabinet field. He said his mind still was open, and that as soon as he reached decisions as to the men he wished, he probably would make all the offers simultaneously. The President-elect was asked if he intended to deliver his inaugural address extemporaneously. "I think I'll prepare the inaugural address," he said, "as those addresses are more like documents than speeches."

The only speech the Governor has prepared in advance since his nomination at Baltimore was his speech of acceptance, as he does not like to read speeches.

With respect to appointments in the foreign service Mr. Wilson let it be known that he had not yet given them definite consideration. He had been shown a newspaper dispatch concerning the appointment of a new Ambassador to Mexico.

"I haven't any more idea who is going to be Ambassador to Mexico than I have as to who will be the first man I'll greet when I reach Washington," he said.

It also is known that Mr. Wilson has not considered whom he will appoint Ambassador to Great Britain.

The Governor was asked if he had read President Taft's speeches in New York yesterday.

"I only saw the headlines," was the reply.

Mr. Wilson spent the day at home with his family.

WOMEN ON SCHOOL BOARD

—PADUCAH INNOVATION

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 5.—The new General Council will organize to-morrow night if the members can agree on a slate. The board will be composed of ten Democrats and ten Republicans. The old board deadlocked in the election of officers and those in office hold until their successors are elected and qualify.

The new School Board also will meet and organize. President W. J. Hillis probably will be re-elected. Two women, Dr. Della Caldwell and Mrs. C. E. Purcell, are members of the board. They will be the first women to hold office in Paducah.

MASON COUNTY FARMER CAUGHT IN OWN TRAP

Augusta, Ky., Jan. 4.—Walter L. Powers, living on the edge of Bracken county, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Powers, of Mason county, met with a peculiar accident while doing some chores around his barn. His hand was caught in a large steel trap that had been set to catch rats. He could not make any one hear him, being a considerable distance from a house, and finally managing to get his knife from his pocket, proceeded to amputate his thumb, cutting to the bone, but was unable to cut through the bone. He was held by the trap for some time, but finally got himself in a position whereby he could put his foot on the trap, thus releasing his hand.

"YOU DEAR, SWEET THING!" AND KISSED EACH OTHER

Female Senator Greets Female Representative in Colorado Assembly.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 3.—"You dear, sweet thing," said Mrs. Agnes Riddle, the woman representative from the First District, as she planted a rousing smack on the lips of Senator Helen Ring Robinson, "Happy New Year."

"Thanks, a Happy New Year to you," said Senator Robinson, as she returned the warm greeting of Representative Riddle with a kiss.

This scene was enacted yesterday in the Senate Chamber in the presence of men colleagues of the women legislators, and everybody knew that the Nineteenth General Assembly of Colorado had opened in a manner entirely distinct from all previous sessions.

When Mrs. Robinson took her seat in the upper branch of the Legislature at noon, she was establishing a precedent of being the first woman Senator to hold office in Colorado and the first in all the United States, but she has no intention of shattering customs.

She has announced that her colleagues may smoke in her presence to their hearts' content, and also that they may indulge in all the privileges, such as chewing, &c. Mrs. Robinson has been officially dubbed Mrs. Senator Robinson for her debut as a lawmaker.

The rules prohibited wearing her hat, but Senator Robinson wore a handsome gown of dull primrose silk, while her hands were encased in long white gloves.

Senator Robinson unanimously was given her choice of seats, and selected one in the first row.

Her maiden speech was a hit. She seconded the nomination of Senator Austin Blakey for President pro tem. Everybody was getting hungry by the time the nomination began.

"This is not the time for oratory, but for luncheon," said Senator Robinson. "I take honor in seconding the nomination of Senator Blakey, too—Senator Blakey, the grand old fighting man!"

MANY THANKS!

I take this means of thanking each one of my patrons for their very liberal patronage which made 1912 the best year of the 12 years I have been in the jewelry business, and as I still aim to increase the quality as well as the quantity of my stock, I earnestly solicit a reasonable share of your future business. Wishing you many good things for 1913, I beg to remain,

HARMONIOUS MEETING OF THE EQUITY MEN

In Owensboro—Will "Stand Pat"

On Sale—T. H. Balmann Elected President.

The regular quarterly meeting of the American Society of Equity for this district was held at the city hall in Owensboro Thursday afternoon, with a splendid representation of the four counties in the district. The meeting was held behind closed doors, and only members in good standing were allowed inside the room.

The most important action taken was the unanimous vote of the members to "stand pat" on the scale of prices that they have fixed and to hold their tobacco for those prices. The committee declined to state what prices they had fixed on the tobacco, but it is understood that they are holding for prices of $10 down to $6 for the leaf and $3 for the trash.

The annual election of officers resulted as follows: T. H. Balmann, of Ohio county, was elected president; Emison Shaw, of Daviess county, vice president, and S. B. Robertson, of McLean county, was named as secretary-treasurer.

The convention selected Hawesville as the place for the holding of the next meeting, which will occur on the first Thursday in April. Final adjournment was taken late in the afternoon, the members declaring that the session had been one during which the greatest harmony had prevailed.

HANCOCK CLARION SOLD —IS NOW IN NEW HANDS

Hawesville, Ky., Jan. 4.—The Hancock Clarion has been sold to Messrs. John G. and E. P. Kelly. The sale was made early in October, possession being given on January 1. The price paid is not made public, but is satisfactory to each of the parties.

The Hancock Clarion was established by John W. Maston and Clarence Sterett March 4, 1893, the day Grover Cleveland was inaugurated the second time. In December, 1896, Mr. Maston died, and in a month or so the other half was bought by Mr. Sterett, who has since conducted it with probably more success than any other paper the county ever had. The paper has a unique record, in that it has missed but two issues in the twenty years; one on account of sickness and the other because of broken machinery. It never offered a premium for a subscriber and in the twenty years never cut a price for anyone, or carried a whisky advertisement.

The new owners, while without newspaper experience, are eminently qualified to take up the work so firmly founded and go forward with it.

Grover Smith Held Over.

Hawesville, Ky., Jan. 4.—Grover Smith, who so seriously cut and wounded Oliver Jones at a dance near Lyonla, this county, Christmas night, waived an examining trial here to-day and was held in the sum of $300 to the April term of the Hancock Circuit Court. While Jones is in a critical condition, hope is entertained for his recovery.

FIRST DEER IN 20 YEARS IN WABASH BOTTOMS

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 6.—The crew of the steamer Belle Fletcher, on the Wabash river, below New Harmony, yesterday took shots at a deer swimming across the river. Dogs were secured to-day and a hunt will be organized at once. No deer have been seen loose in the Wabash bottoms for twenty years and the hunters on both sides of the river are preparing to join in the chase.

"PIGS IS PIGS," ALLEGES A RAILWAY MAIL CLERK

Anxious Woman Wanted to Send

Small Porker Via the Parcels Post.

No pigs! Positively no live pigs accepted for parcels post delivery. T. E. Jones, of the railway mail service refused to accept one at the local union station, although it was stamped and waiting at the train. "No, madam," said the railway mail clerk. "No live animals or fowls are accepted—only bees—queen bees."

"But this pig weighs only ten pounds, and it goes to a very dear friend of mine—it is the gentlest thing in the world. It wouldn't bite, kick or anything—and I don't see why pigs can't be delivered as well as anything. Besides, this is a little pig."

"Pigs is pigs," said the mail clerk, standing in the door of the car, while the woman with her crated parcel held it up to him. "It's a nice pig, I'll admit, but we can not accept pigs."

"I saw in the paper where a lady mailed a dog, and it went through the post-office like a post-card."

"Yes, but she mailed it and got away before the postmaster could stop her. I suppose he couldn't do anything but deliver it, since it was mailed and stamped, and he couldn't push it back on the sender. But he didn't have to. The law says no live things—except queen bees—and that's all there is to it."

"Well, what's the matter with me pushing my pig through the door of your car while you're not looking? You wouldn't have to say anything about the matter, but just go ahead and deliver the package."

Jones was willing to be accommodating as much as possible, but he told the Owensboro woman he couldn't take any chance. He was not afraid the pig would squeal on him, but he simply didn't want to do any shady business or be bothered with pigs rooting around his other mail and piles of parcels post packages, chewing up some of the letters maybe, or minking its bed on others when the time came to drop them at way stations.

"No," he said again. "Can't take the pig. Kill it and do it up in a different package and then we will take it."

"I'll do nothing of the kind," said the woman, and she picked up her post parcel and disappeared.—[Owensboro Messenger.]

Sixty Years Wasted!

Flint, Mich., Jan. 4.—"My first kiss," bashfully remarked Marcus B. L. Clyde, of Clyde, Mich., 80 years old, as he saluted his bride at his New Year's wedding. The bride was Miss Mary A. Miller, of Vassar, aged 46. Clyde is a veteran of the Civil War.

Miss Maude Ingersoll, daughter of the late Col. R. G. Ingersoll, was married at New York, according to the ceremony of the "Ethical Culture Society," advocated by her father.

Raid took place to-day from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Following the services the casket was placed on a catafalque and taken to the Grand Central station, escorted by three battalions of infantry. The body was taken on a special funeral train to Tarrytown, where it was buried at the famous old Sleepy Hollow cemetery.

COUNTY UNION A. S. OF E. ORGANIZED FOR DAVIESS

A county union for Daviess county of the American Society of Equity was formed Friday afternoon at the court house in Owensboro, when about thirty farmers held an interesting meeting and perfected a permanent organization.

The meeting was called to order by L. N. Robertson, and shortly afterward an election of officers to serve in the organization was entered into. The result of the election was that G. R. Ruby, of Wolf Branch, was made president; J. W. Dunn, Whitesville, vice president; Paul Barrett, secretary, and Ben Hardesty, assistant secretary. The purpose of the organization is to bring the district locals into a more compact body and to make the county the unit of operations in the future.

A STRICT QUARANTINE IS NOW ON AT HICKMAN

On Account of Spinal Meningitis

Prevailing in Nearby Counties.

Hickman, Ky., Jan. 6.—On account of the epidemic of cerebro-spinal meningitis in Lake and Dyer counties, Tennessee, the City Council and the City Board of Health has proclaimed a rigid quarantine against these counties and no one will be allowed to enter Hickman from Lake and Dyer counties under any condition whatsoever by rail or otherwise.

Persons coming over the N. C. & St. L. railroad will be required to have health certificates and other proper credentials, or otherwise they will not be permitted in the city. All public schools, moving pictures and churches will be closed until the quarantine has been lifted, and no children will be allowed on the streets. The County Board of Health joined the city Board and Council in this, and event an epidemic of this disease. Up to the present time there are no cases here at all and no suspected cases.

This quarantine, which bars everything from coming in from Lake and Dyer counties to Hickman, will stop the C. M. & G. railroad's passenger trains from coming into Hickman. There will be inspectors on the N. C. & St. L. trains and sections placed on all the county roads leading into the city. There also will be an inspector placed on the C. M. & G. freight trains to see that no one slips in this way.

The type of cerebro-spinal meningitis which has been raging in Dyer and Lake counties is of the worst form, and has proven fatal in almost every case. Some of its victims have died within a very few hours after being seized. For the last three weeks many people have been leaving Dyer and Lake counties.

STATE HAS 1,725 MEN IN ORGANIZED MILITIA

Washington, Jan. 6.—In the annual report of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills, Chief of the Division of Militia Affairs of the War Department, made public here, the strength of the Kentucky National Guard inspection is given as follows:

Officers 145; enlisted men 1,580; total 1,725. These figures include both those present and absent. The number absent from inspection is given as 440.

The number of men who have fired the marksmen's record course the special course "C" or the equivalent, is given as 820.

In the Kentucky Guard there are 979 men with more than one year's service in the regular army or the organized militia.

Death of Dr. Creel.

Central City, Ky., Jan. 3.—Dr. Milton Puckney Creel, ex-mayor of Central City, died at his home on Second street in this city, after a prolonged illness of several complications.

JUST GOOD LUCK SEEN BY WILSON

In No. 13 Figuring Often In His Life.

PRESIDENT-ELECT IN FAVOR

Of Walking to the Capitol
When He Takes the Oath of Office.

VERY SIMPLE INAUGURATION

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 2.—President-elect Wilson passed a quiet New Year's Day. He went for a short walk in the forenoon and during the afternoon received a few calls from his Princeton friends.

Governor Wilson is not at all superstitious regarding the 13 "hoo-doo." In fact, he regards the number as one which rather brings him good luck.

Discussing the matter to-day he said:

"It is curious how that number has figured in my life and never had connection with bad fortune. I will become President in 1913, and, oddly enough, the Electoral College which formally will elect me will cast their ballots on January 13."

The last day the Wilsons were in Bermuda, where they went soon after election, was December 13. On Friday, August 13, the President-elect occupied Seat No. 13 in a car from New York to Seagirt. The train reached its destination at 11:13. There are 13 letters in his name and in his thirteenth year as a professor in Princeton he was chosen as President of the University.

When asked to-day whether he would dispense this year with the inaugural ball, the President-elect said he had given the matter little thought. When told that it costs several thousand dollars, he expressed astonishment, but said nothing to indicate that he would have it eliminated.

Wilson intimated to-night that if it were possible he would like to walk between the White House and the Capitol when he takes his oath of office as President of the United States on March 4. He realizes, however, that the crowds would make it impossible, and that he probably will have to ride in a parade, as have all recent Presidents.

Jeffersonian simplicity, the kind that the President-elect would like to emulate, however, he remarked, consisted not of a horseback ride, as some historians have chronicled it, but merely an unostentatious walk down Pennsylvania avenue in the company of a few citizens.

"The story that Jefferson rode on horseback to the Capitol and hitched his horse to a post while he went in to take the oath of office isn't true," said the Governor. He was told that Governor Sulzer had walked to the Capitol at Albany and had abolished the parade. He spoke approvingly of this. He was asked if he had made any plans for his own inauguration in this connection.

"I hadn't thought out the method at all," he said. "I have simply satisfied myself with impressing the gentlemen at Washington on the inaugural committee with my desire to have the inauguration as simple as possible. I dare say the great crowds in the streets on that day would make walking to the White House and Capitol difficult."

The President-elect was questioned as to whether he thought it would be an added convenience to members of Congress to know just how soon after the closing of the present session of Congress they would have to reassemble for an extra session. He indicated that one of the very first acts of his administration would be to announce the date of the new session.

"Congress will be in session until March 4 anyway," he said, "and there will not be much of an interval between that day and the extra session, so that the members will be able to make arrangements. The only thing that has been essential in the way of an announcement was that the members should know that there was to be an extra session so they could engage quarters."

"LIFE IS A H---L" FOR RICH BROTHER

Says Frank Rockefeller Of Oil Magnate.

HE IS AFRAID OF KIDNAPERS

John D.'s Brother Talks Openly
About the Standard
Oil's Business.

ALL DOES NOT TURN TO GOLD

Belvidere, Kan., Jan. 2.—"That brother of mine, John D. Rockefeller, is the most lonesome man in the world. There is no man who walks the earth he can call his real friend."

This was the statement made today by Frank Rockefeller, of Cleveland and New York, who is spending some time at his big ranch near Belvidere, where he comes every winter for a few weeks' vacation. For 20 years he has been general field man for the Standard Oil Company. His 15,000-acre ranch in this county is called "Rockefeller's $1,000,000 plaything."

"I'd rather live on a 150-acre Western homestead, with a horse-steader's usual farm, than live like John D. does in his palaces. He's living in a regular h---l. He's the most lonesome man on the face of the earth. He can call no man 'friend.'"

"John D. has been relegated to the background by all the big business men with whom he once did business. None of them will have anything to do with him. They don't like his ways of doing business. Brother William is worth 50 per cent. more money than John D., but the people don't know it. John D. hasn't invested his money for many years and is practically out of the game. He has the income of his investments, but nothing more. William invests and reinvests and to-day is worth one half again as much as John D."

"John D. is afraid of being kidnapped and held for ransom. He never stirs without his guards. If he goes from his house only a few steps, there are several armed men with him or standing at windows with their eyes on him. He always is afraid kidnappers are after him. Years ago he attempted to stop me from going hunting for fear I would be kidnapped and he would be called upon to pay the ransom. It's a regular mania with him now."

Frank Rockefeller is 70 years old, straight as an arrow, weighs 217 pounds and is an athlete. Regardless of his appearance while in New York or Cleveland, when in Kansas he looks just like an ordinary rancher. And he acts like one, too. He can ride any horse on the ranch, he can outswear any cowboy on the place, and he can chew as much tobacco in a day as the next man. He doesn't mind asking for a "chew" from any puncher, and he will as readily give one to any of the boys.

Rockefeller talks interestingly of the financial problems of the day.

"The greatest question is the trusts and how to handle them," he says. "The problem cannot be solved by Congress, because the individual members are not broad enough. It must be solved by a body of men with commercial training."

"For instance, the beef trust is controlled by one of the smartest sets of men in the country. And the Government sent Jim Garfield to investigate them. Garfield was bright enough, but he had no commercial training. Everybody knows the result. Nothing of value was gained."

"The suit against the Standard Oil Company was a complete failure. The oil interests are stronger to-day than before the dissolution and they occupy a position of power they never dreamed of before the Court order dissolved the combination. Before there was just one competitor for the independents to fight. Now there are 34 competitors, all working together. And all because some one blundered. The only direct and immediate result was that the oil interests cleaned up $180,000,000 in a jiffy."

"A similar blunder was made in the tobacco case and the tobacco people made $100,000,000 in short order. Big men must meet big men. A body of men with commercial training would know just how to go about this business, but men of the caliber now working upon these cases will scarcely do the country any good. They know the end they desire to reach, but they don't know the right road."

That everything the Rockefeller family touches does not turn to gold, is exemplified by a story the millionaire ranchman tells on himself. Continuing, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"Some years ago a friend of mine got me into a Wyoming copper mine. I was the principal stockholder. I poured thousands of dollars into the thing and got nothing in return. Finally I went out there. The place was about 75 miles from a railroad and I went in a rolling stage coach. When I reached the town I asked for the Rockefeller mine. They showed me a hole in the ground about as big as a barrel."

"Where's the foreman?" I asked. "I'm him," said a big fellow. "Well, you're fired," I answered. "Everybody's fired. Pay off the men. You fellows can have the mine."

"We don't want it," grinned the foreman. "I took the next coach back to the railroad, and I haven't bought a mine since then."

SHOCKING SCENES CAUGHT ON FILMS

Chicago Went the Limit
New Year's Eve.

'T WAS ALL DRUNKEN REVELRY

Respectable Element Was Defied By Outrages of a Howling Mob.

DECENCY WAS LOST SIGHT OF

Chicago, Jan. 2.—A large number of reports of so-called New Year's eve orgies were ready to give for presentation to a meeting of leaders of reform organizations here this afternoon.

Some of the reports are illustrated by flashlight photographs. Arthur Burrill Farwell stated that prosecutions would be instituted against a number of cafes which remained open after the legal closing hour, 1 o'clock a. m.

A report sent by ministers to the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League declares that the scenes in some downtown hotels were worse than those in "supposedly tougher" districts.

In some scenes men and women are described as staggering into hotel lobbies intoxicated, while much public love-making was incident to the revelry.

With the administration friendly toward the big debauch, affairs went the limit. Some of the cafes, however, where the wildest scenes were enacted, took the precaution to bar out reporters or anybody else who might testify to what happened.

This method prevented any record of the customary scenes of waiters dragging helplessly drunken girls and women from beneath the tables and leading them to rooms where they could sober off.

One of the distinct novelties of this season was put on by a pretty girl, faultlessly dressed, on a crowded south-bound Cottage Grove avenue car. Her escort assisted her in getting her feet into the straps and she hung, head downward, affording a liberal display of dainty lingerie.

The applause was so terrific that she repeated the performance three times and enthusiastic spectators passed the hat and got a stocking full of money for her. On this car were at least twenty women, apparently of the respectable well-to-do class, but they applauded the girl's act as enthusiastically as did the men.

In the hotels and cafes the customary stunts of dancing on the tables, kicking at the chandeliers, kissing everybody, indiscriminately, dancing the bear cat, bunny hug, tango and other fancy steps, with many hectic embellishments, were pulled off.

The uproarious doings did not commence until after midnight, when everybody was either too drunk to interfere, or just drunk enough to go the limit.

Out on the streets, jammed to suffocation, Chicago gave evidences of having slipped back many years into savagery. Thieves, pickpockets, debauchees, toughs of all

From urinary disorders—
Any curable disease of the kidneys,
Use a tested kidney remedy.
Doan's Kidney Pills have been tested by thousands.
Grateful people testify.
Can you ask more convincing proof of merit?

W. M. Young, farmer, R. F. D. 3, Hawesville, Cloverport, Ky., says: "A member of my family used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills about three years ago and found them very beneficial. She had pains in side and across the small of her back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended in the local papers, she got a supply at Gibson's drug store and began using as directed. In a short time she was cured and has not had any further need of a kidney remedy."

sorts, agents for white slavers and the red light resorts were in full force. Young girls were bent over the head with tin horns, rushed into hallways and separated from their escorts, who promptly were accommodated with a fight if they protested.

Many of these girls, who came downtown in a spirit of innocent revelry, had sad experiences before they found their way home again. Scenes on the late cars were disgusting. These crowds were made up of the sour, fighting drunk class, who had stayed the limit. On all the cars pickpockets plied their trade freely, for it is their annual harvest.

SALARY OF FARM WIFE SHOULD BE ESTIMATED

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside a woman contributor writing a little article on "The Cost of Wheat" says:

"Mr. Schwartz estimates the cost at $10.25 per acre. A farmer in North Dakota, using 320 acres, all in wheat as a basis, figures $12.25 per acre. If a business man, a manufacturer of farm machinery, for instance, were to figure the cost of growing an acre of wheat as he figures the cost of his product, he would include the interest on his plant; the farm cost; the upkeep; making good and replacing the wear and tear; the salary of the president or manager of the plant, in addition to that of the employee (the farmer's wife would be considered on the basis of an assistant manager, and her salary would be calculated); the loss of stock during the year; the interest on the note, if any, at the bank, or say the farm mortgage, if such things exist to-day in the farm world; taxes, and perhaps a percentage for 'unseen expenses' that creep into farm life and yet go unheeded."

"If the above items are not legitimate 'expense' items on a farm, what are?"

SALE OF TOBACCO IS CONSUMMATED

Green River Pool Finally Closed Out.

AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

Was Purchaser—The Indiana
Weed Was Also Included in the Sale.

BURLEY CROP ALSO BOUGHT

The Owensboro Inquirer of Thursday says:

The slight hitch that existed between the buyers and the Green River Tobacco Growers Association as to the sale of the Indiana tobacco, which is a part of the pool, was satisfactorily adjusted at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the sale was finally completed for the entire pool of 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco.

President W. G. Riney, Secretary Walter Atherton, Vice President H. Marksberry, and Oscar Madden and J. E. Gregory, members of the Board of Control, went to Rockport on the early boat this morning and returned at noon with samples, which were presented to R. E. Massie, representing the American Tobacco Company. The samples as graded were satisfactory to Mr. Massie, who agreed to take the Indiana tobacco, to be delivered at Rockport. There is about 700,000 pounds of Pryor, and the price was the same as paid for the Kentucky tobacco of $9 down to $5 for leaf and lugs, and $3 for trash.

There is about 500,000 pounds of Burley tobacco in Indiana, which is a part of the pool of the Green River Association. This tobacco has also been sold provided the Burley poolers will accept the price, which the officials believe there will be no doubt, as the price of $14 down to $4 is considered reasonable for the tobacco this year.

The American Tobacco Company and the Imperial will receive most of the tobacco in Daviess county, a large per cent. of it being delivered in Owensboro. Many poolers are now ready to bring some of their crop to the market, which was stripped and bulked down some days ago.

The opening of the tobacco market will be hailed with great delight, not only by the poolers, but by merchants and persons in other business, who have been anxiously waiting for several weeks for the tobacco to begin moving.

Successful Opening.

The opening of the loose leaf tobacco market in Owensboro was inaugurated at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon by the Owensboro Tobacco Warehouse Company, at its factory on West Ninth street. The opening was very flattering to the company, and notwithstanding the bad weather there was a large number of buyers present, some of whom were from points outside Owensboro. There was also a large number of persons on hand who had never seen a loose leaf sale made, and were very much pleased with the manner in which the tobacco was sold.

The company sold about 20,000 pounds of tobacco, all of which was considered of an inferior grade. Some of the tobacco was considered very common stuff, and part of it was the tail ends of crops. The prices ranged from $12.50 for leaf and lugs down to $3, including trash.

Take the 'direct road' to health and strength by using Foley Kidney Pills for backache, rheumatism, weak, sore kidneys and bladder irregularities. They are the best medicine you can buy for kidney and bladder ailments. Sold by all dealers."

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY HAIR IN CHINA

In a fiction story about China, in the January American Magazine, appears the following:

"There is certain to be an enormous market for Western clothing in China after the revolution, both good materials and the cheaper grades of ready-made suits. These poor devils, a few hundred millions of them, are determined to catch up—five thousand years at a clip—and some folks are going to make a lot of money exploiting them. It might as well be you, among others. Besides, the Chinese really want the clothes."

"Also, now is a good time to pick up human hair for a song. Pig-tails are falling by the million. And there is nothing your Chinaman won't sell. You can even buy the right to disturb an ancestral grave for about ten dollars Mex. If you have any friends in the hair business, tell them about it."

MODERN APPLICATION OF WILSON'S POLICIES

In an article entitled the New Freedom, in the current edition of the World's Work, President-elect Wilson gives forth his policies. Among some of his observations are:

"A corporation is very much like a tenement house. It isn't the premise of a single commercial family. It is just as much a public affair as a great tenement house or public highway."

"What we have to discuss is not the wrong which individuals intentionally do, but the wrong system."

"When I hear judges reason upon the relationship that used to exist between workmen and their employers a generation ago, I wonder if they have not opened their eyes to the modern world."

"American industry is not as free as it was; American enterprise is not free; the man with only a little capital is finding it harder to get into the field, more and more impossible to compete with the big fellow. Why? Because the laws of this country do not prevent the strong from wrecking the weak. The strong dominate the industrial and the economic life of the country."

PROBABLE COST OF BALKAN WAR

Allies Are Spending $300,- 000 a Day

ON TROOPS AND MUNITIONS

The Estimated Cost of Life Brings Figure Up To Big Proportions.

THE INDUSTRIAL LOSS GREAT

The cost in money to all the nations of the Balkan War has been millions upon millions, and the expenses are all going upward day by day. The reports as to the killed and wounded include only the period up to the proclamation of the armistice.

England, of the great European Powers not actually engaged in the war, has escaped with the least expenditures by the British Government was for naval movements, and this outlay has been officially estimated at $300,000. There was no mobilization of troops by England.

Exact figures from Belgrade are hard to get, but the following are partly official: The Servians contributed 300,000 men. Of these 50,000 stayed at home for service there. They lost 22,000 killed and wounded. Of these they assert only 4,000 were killed and the rest wounded.

The Bulgarians sent to the field 300,000, with the 50,000 on the frontier. They lost in killed and wounded 80,000, and at Kirk Kill- esch alone they lost 20,000.

The Montenegrins sent 75,000 men to the field, of whom they lost between 6,500 and 7,000.

The Greeks contributed 120,000 and they lost about 7,000.

Servia was spending $100,000 a day from October 18 to December 23, making $6,000,000. She mobilized her army 16 days previous to the outbreak of the war, which cost her $1,800,000. She has a reserve fund enough for her to fight four months longer without borrowing.

Bulgaria for 66 days has been spending $120,000 a day, making $7,920,000. Her mobilization cost her another $2,100,000.

Greece has paid out $3,600,000 up to the time of writing; that is about $60,000 a day.

Montenegro has spent $10,000 per diem and she has fought for 55 days, bringing her expenses up to a total of $550,000, all of which was supplied by Russia and Italy.

Servia has captured, according to official information, 308 cannon, 213,000 rifles of various types, hundreds of quick-firing guns, 42,000,000 cartridges and 110 wagons. This ammunition and all the rest of the property is in good condition. Servia gave to Bulgaria $6,000,000 for war expenses, besides much ammunition and the uniforms for 30,000 men.

At present Austro-Hungary's daily expenses for her army are calculated at about $200,000 and those of the navy $60,000. The total daily expenditures is estimated at about $260,000 a day. This outlay has now been going on for 90 days, therefore Austria's total military and naval expenditure to date has been about $23,400,000. The loss in wages and industrial profits, owing to a virtual state of war, is more difficult to compute, but high financial authorities in Vienna put it at $15,000,000.—[London Cor. New York World.]

CARE MORE NECESSARY TILAN CAPITAL ON FARM

The following is taken from the current issue of Farm and Fireside: "Better farming may lie in just such simple things as adjusting the plow to do the best possible work, in feeding stock so that not a bit of waste follows, and in carrying out plans carefully laid. What the world needs is not so much men who have thousands to lay out in land and equipment, as farmers who know the value of details and have the will and the disposition to work to the line."

DISGUSTED WITH PRICE NOW SET ON TOBACCO

And Will Grow No More of the Weed Unless Eight Cents Is Obtained.

"I'll never pool another pound of tobacco nor grow another pound unless the sale of the 1912 crop is made at 8 cents," said Louis Hancock, of Webster county, to a reporter for the Journal, says the Henderson Journal.

"Eight cents is not too much any such thing. It is a fair price and but for a monopoly in the tobacco business we would have long since gotten it."

"Tobacco cannot be grown at the prices for which the Daviess county growers have sold. My tobacco will have to be sold at eight cents in the stemming pool or I am through with tobacco forever. And the other farmers down my way feel the same way about it. We may have to sell off some of our land and it will be a hard struggle for a while until we adjust ourselves to the new conditions, but it can be done."

"I had expected to put out 75 acres of tobacco this year, but I haven't burnt a plant bed."

Growers of this entire district seem to be unanimous in making a stand for the price that has been asked. It seems to be a matter of principle as much as of price. The feeling is prevalent that they have grappled with a trust and it might as well be tried out one time as another.

Many declare that there is less tobacco in the foreign market this season than at the same time last year. They show the monthly reports of the stocks on hand and in the London and Liverpool markets there were nearly 2,000 less hogsheads on hand in December than there were in December 1911.

One prominent tobaccoist said that the Imperial Company ruined the market in Liverpool and London and there was no market in either place. He said that competition was broken up here and also in foreign markets.

Edwin Hodge was asked about the situation and said that eight cents was too much. When asked about the London and Liverpool market, he said that the Imperial does not go into the London and Liverpool market and he had no idea what was on the stocks in either place.

When questioned as to whether the 1912 crop was larger or smaller than the 1911 crop, Mr. Hodge answered that in this county the crop was much larger, but in the district in which the dark tobacco is grown the crop was lighter than last year.

THE BIG RIDDLE OF LIFE SOLVED

Declares a Noted Seattle Doctor.

HAS FORMULA FOR PRODUCING

Life Artificially and Explains Workings of the Curious Process.

SURE WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

Through incorporation of a society "to place before the world the discoveries of Dr. H. Littlefield in biology, psychology and metaphysics," it became known to-day that Littlefield, who maintains offices in the Central Building, declares he has found the process of creating life artificially.

Dr. Littlefield has made Seattle his home for two years. He has been experimenting in the creation of life since he obtained his degree from the Kansas Homeopathic Medical College in 1886.

In his experiments, he says, he has created a minute, but new, insect, which, multiplied in size 1,200 times under the microscope, appears as an octopus-like organism.

Life—what is it?
What makes it? What is its origin? What is its source?

The scientists of all periods have tried to find the answer—Huxley, Tyndall, Haeckel, Darwin and the rest. Now Littlefield says he has solved the problem. He knows the mystery of life.

Darwin declared that life can only be generated from antecedent life. That is, only the living produce living things—vegetable or animal.

But Dr. Littlefield upsets this theory. His discoveries are that life can result from the grouping of inorganic matter, inanimate objects, lifeless substances. So far his experiments have reached only the very beginning of the possibilities he is hoping for.

"Twelve elements enter into the composition of all organized beings, without exception," said Dr. Littlefield to-day. These are the phosphates of sodium, lime, potash, magnesia, iron; the sulphates of sodium, potash, lime; the chlorides of sodium and potash; and silicon and calcium. Says Dr. Littlefield.

"Get the proper proportion of each, and you can construct the form of anything. By the various groupings, modification of relation and proportion, every species of plant and animal is formed."

But even with the form constructed there would still be needed that spark which makes life. The life principle, as Dr. Littlefield calls it, must be supplied.

The phenomena of creating life is reduced, according to Dr. Littlefield, to the proposition of saturating the substance so constructed with the "vital magnetism." This magnetism permeates every form of matter, says Dr. Littlefield. He proves it in this manner:

"Put a drop of water on a microscope and any substance in it that will float and not dissolve will take on the phenomena of magnetization—that is, of attraction and repulsion among its particles during the process of evaporation. By repeating this process a number of times with the same particles of matter, they will become completely saturated with magnetic force."

"This process of evaporation is nature's method of saturating matter with vital magnetism."

It was while conducting similar experiments that Dr. Littlefield discovered he had created his new six-armed insect.

As the object gyrated with comparatively high velocity, Dr. Littlefield was confident he had created a living thing. In a similar manner Dr. Littlefield found he could produce out of inorganic matter the beginning of growth of filices, and other living cells, both in the animal and floral life.

"Carried out to its ultimate," says Dr. Littlefield, "science will be able to create even human life."—[Seattle Star.]

A LIMIT TO THE PRICE THAT PORK WILL BRING

The following is taken from the current issue of Farm and Fireside: "There seems to be a limit to the price the public will pay for pork. When the price of hogs had gradually worked upward, because of scarcity, to close to the $9.50 mark in Chicago, the buying public balked and failed to buy pork at the figure the $9.50 price on the hoof made.

"Prices at Chicago had also become too high in comparison with prices in eastern cities to make order-buying profitable, so the shipping demand was correspondingly curtailed."

"With these two 'bear' factors operating, the market dropped day by day until a decline of seventy-five cents had been registered. Then consumers' and shippers' demands returned, and the market started back. It seems that a nine-cent average market is all that present supply and demand will support."

CAN'T WED SWEETHEART BEFORE HIS EXECUTION

The Secretary of State for Home Affairs, Reginald McKenna, has been called upon to decide whether a condemned murderer can be allowed to marry the woman of whose unborn child he is the father, in order to legitimize the child. The decision is in the negative.

The problem resulted from the case of John Williams, who was recently sentenced to death for murdering a Police Inspector at Eastbourne. The many circumstances connected with it gave an unusual interest to the affair and the newspapers printed many columns about it.

Williams, since he was sentenced, had appealed for permission to marry his sweetheart, Florence Seymour, who testified at his trial when she repeatedly referred to him as her husband, although they were not married.

Williams asked to be allowed to marry the girl before the child was born, the nomenclature being imminent. The Home Secretary replied briefly: "I am unable to accede to your request."

Miss Seymour gave birth to a girl yesterday. She is very anxious to marry the convicted man, and said to-day that Williams is the only man she ever loved, and she would marry him to-morrow even if she knew that he would be hanged immediately after.

Williams has appealed from his conviction, and the hearing on it has been fixed for January 11.—[London Cor. New York Sun.]

DANGER FROM GRIPPE

Lies in That Cough and Weak, Worn-out Condition.

Grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia, these are greatly to be feared at this time of the year.

To prevent grippe from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system quickly.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back quickly.

Mrs. A. A. Grabbill, of Strasburg, Va. says: "Grippe left me weak, run down and with a severe cough, from which I suffered four years. I tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol, from which I received great benefit. My cough is almost entirely gone, and I am strong and well again, and I am glad to recommend Vinol to others who suffer as I did."

Try Vinol with the certainty that if it does not benefit you we will give back your money. James H. Williams, Druggist, Hartford, Ky.

RHEUMATISM

External applications sometimes give temporary relief but won't cure; the sure way to secure permanent results is to thoroughly eradicate from the blood all the impurities. Nothing on earth will drive out the poisons from your system, keep the bowels, kidneys and liver in good condition as SEVEN BARS, the wonderful remedy that has proved its great merits the past 42 years.

SEVEN BARS can be had of all druggists, at 50 cents per bottle. Give it a good trial and watch your rheumatism disappear. LYMAN BROWN, 66 Murray St., New York, N.Y.

Pains All Over!

"You are welcome," says Mrs. Nora Guffey, of Broken Arrow, Okla., "to use my letter in any way you want to, if it will induce some suffering woman to try Cardui. I had pains all over, and suffered with an abscess. Three physicians failed to relieve me. Since taking Cardui, I am in better health than ever before, and that means much to me, because I suffered many years with womanly troubles, of different kinds. What other treatments I tried, helped me for a few days only."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Don't wait, until you are taken down sick, before taking care of yourself. The small aches and pains, and other symptoms of womanly weakness and disease, always mean worse to follow, unless given quick treatment.

You would always keep Cardui handy, if you knew what quick and permanent relief it gives, where weakness and disease of the womanly system makes life seem hard to bear. Cardui has helped over a million women. Try it.

The Hartford Herald

WEBER MATTHEWS, FRANK L. FELIX, EDITORS
FRANK L. FELIX, Pub. and Prop'r.

Entered at the Hartford post-office as mail matter of the second class.

Better look sharp. Under the new parcels post law, gold bricks can now be sent by mail.

Whenever you read that "the audience sat in open-mouthed wonder," you might guess that about half of them were yawning.

The newspaper and job printing plants throughout the country are not benefited at all by the new parcels post law. It still costs them just the same to send printed matter to a customer.

Those who are fearful that the year 1913 will bring bad luck should remember that we have just passed through a year in which the number thirteen played a conspicuous part. Just add up 1, 9, 1, 2.

There were 154 articles or items on different subjects in The Herald of last week, besides the advertisements. Country correspondence counted as one article each.
And this was just an ordinary issue.

"There is one way, and one way only, for the Democrats to remain in power: by giving the people after election what they promised before election. The people don't want excuses; they want deeds." So says Speaker Champ Clark. And he's simply right about it.

Easter comes this year on March 23, the earliest it has come for 57 years, or since 1856. It came a day earlier than this in 1812, and —so they say—two days earlier in the year 287 A. D. No doubt it will be a pretty chilly day for flower garden headgear and other spring toggery.

On last Saturday the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times celebrated the occupation of their "new quarters at corner of Third and Green streets, just one block from where they formerly held forth for many years, with a public reception.
It was a fitting occasion, marking the steady progress and attainment of Kentucky's distinguished morning and evening journals.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller's brother Frank says the noted founder of the Standard Oil Co. is the most lovesome man on earth on account of his financial standing and environment, not being able to call any man truly his friend, because of morbid fears. The poor devil who hasn't got a cent suffers from loneliness and friendlessness also, in a much more bitter way, but somehow most all of us would like to occupy John D.'s shoes.

The Owensboro Messenger of Sunday says:

"The Hartford Herald has just passed its thirty-eighth birthday and in all that period it has been a credit and honor to Hartford and Ohio county. There is no better edited or higher-toned weekly in all Kentucky than the Hartford Herald."

We certainly appreciate this compliment, coming as it does from one of the very best daily papers in the country—from an authority well capable of judging.

We have been wondering why the name Col. L. W. Gaines, editor of the Todd County Progress, has not been mentioned for some high political position under President Wilson. He is the original Woodrow Wilson editor in Kentucky and was vice president of the Woodrow Wilson Association of the State.
He fought for New Jersey's Governor both before and after his nomination for the Presidency. Col.
Gaines is worthy of any appointment, ranging from postmaster, Surveyor of the Louisville port, Internal Revenue Agent, to Minister to the Court of St. James. He could fill any of them to the limit. No man in the State deserves better at the hands of the new national administration than this popular and well fitted editor.

John M. Bible, of Hopkinsville, President of the Kentucky Manufacturers Association, in an address before a meeting of the manufacturers and shippers of Southern Indiana held at Paducah recently, said that the trouble in this State was that the people paid more attention to politics than to business. To emphasize this assertion, he stated:
"If I should go to Louisville to-morrow on a political mission and have a conference with several politicians, my presence there would be widely heralded, while if I went there on a business mission that meant a great deal to the business interests of the State, I would receive little, if any notice." It will strike the average person that the gentleman's remarks are quite as true as the contents of the Book which embraces his name.

We do not know much about the real merits of the transaction, but it seemed a pity that the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association felt impelled to take such a low price for their product. It is generally believed that had they held on awhile longer, they would have gotten a better price. The worst feature of the case is that the price is less than last year, thus setting a precedent that will be hard to break next year and thereafter. It now seems evident that the tobacco trust people have again gotten things going their way. More's the pity for the tobacco raiser.

The matter of the selection of a new chairman of the county executive committee is now before the Democrats of Ohio county, as well as the choosing of precinct committeemen. The new party law says: "The Democrats of this State shall meet at their various precincts on the third Saturday in January (the 18th) at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m., and proceed to the election of a committeeman to serve until his successor shall be elected by order of a succeeding State Convention. On the Monday following, these precinct committeemen shall meet at the county seat and proceed to the election of a chairman and secretary." Democrats should keep this matter in mind and proceed to act at the appointed time.

IT'S HARD TO CONVICT A WOMAN IN KENTUCKY

After several trials which resulted in hung juries, a young woman in Marshall county has been acquitted of the charge of poisoning her husband. A special venire summoned from a neighboring county agreed on a verdict of "not guilty," after one hour's deliberation. It is no harder job to drive an elephant through the eye of a needle than it is to convict a woman of husband murder in Kentucky, especially if the defendant happens to be fairly young and passably good looking and knows how to shed a bucket or so of tears at the psychological moment. About half a dozen such cases have been tried in the State recently with the same result in all.—[Frankfort State Journal.

CENTERTOWN.

Jan. 6.—Rev. Alec Royster filled his regular appointment at the Methodist Church here last Sunday morning and night.

Miss Laura Taul is on the sick list.

The infant daughter of D. H.
Luck has pneumonia.

Centertown has organized a basket ball team under the management of A. R. Plummer. Their hall is nearing completion and they will play their initiatory game next Saturday night.

Misses Nellie and Nola Tate, of Black Rock, Grayson county, and Misses Ruth and May Godsey, of Smallhouse, are visiting Mrs. C. T.
S. Overton.

Mr. Karl Park, of Friedaland, is the guest of Lee Mason and family.

Mr. L. R. Goodall is visiting relatives in Cincinnati.

Mr. Henry Stearman, of Matanzas, and Miss Lizzie Williams, of Paradise, were married at the home of Rev. L. W. Tichenor last Monday evening.

Mr. A. B. Tichenor and wife, of Matanzas, visited relatives here
Sunday night and Monday.

Bernie Tichenor and John Lindley, of Matanzas, were in town Sunday night.

Mrs. H. H. Davis, who has been on the sick list, is improving.

The family of Mr. A. B. Rowe are on the sick list.

Messrs. Herschel King and Letch-er Bennett, of Smallhouse, visited Alvey Calloway and family here last Sunday.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all dealers.

Six thousand pounds of concrete paving blocks, sent out as samples, were mailed by parcels post in Chicago by one firm.

PARTY HAS CREED OF CLASS HATRED

Says Mr. Taft of Roosevelt Crowd.

TAFT PARTY WON A VICTORY

In Defeat, Says President, Because It Kept Roosevelt From Winning.

RIDICULES THE DEMOCRATS

New York, Jan. 4.—President
Taft speaking at a banquet of Republican party leaders at the Waldorf-Astoria to-night, said the party won a victory in defeat, because it prevented the Progressive party's success.

"That party has a creed of class hatred, unbalanced fanaticism, chimerical promise of impossible ideas. It is made up of men who left the Republican party under impulse. If they had won, it would have meant the engulfing of popular government in a storm of contempt for constitutional rights."

He outlined Republican principles as protection of the nation's industries, retention of the Philippines, education of the Filipinos, election laws giving the people the best chance to express their opinions, and above all, the preservation of the pillars of government.
He said the poor are not getting poorer, and that under the Progressive regime, the wealth earned by the successful would be taken away and given to the unsuccessful.

He given his defeat was due to personal dislike. He termed it
"Taftophobia."

He said he had seen much done in Congress which was also due to the criticism of newspapers that objected to the print paper clause in the tariff and to the second-class mail law. He said the newspapers were unjust. He said Congress had passed much good legislation with the aid of the so-called reactionaries, and denied that they deserved the term "aristocrat."

He ridiculed the Democratic party promises as an offer to "eat your cake and have it." He declared you can't change to a tariff for revenue only and not hurt manufacturing and lower wages.

He proposed a banking and currency law, and said the best of the Aldrich law was disguised.

He invited back all the "impulsive voters" and Democrats who love the Constitution. He said there must be a campaign of education among the common people against class hatred and the fanaticism of unbalanced enthusiasts who would bring an era of anarchy and chaos.

One thousand and five hundred men sat at the banquet. They came from all parts of the country, and cheerfully attested a willingness to work for victory in the next campaign.

When the President stopped, flushed with exertion, there was wild cheering for five minutes. The tables were placed in the great ball room, and a lavish dinner was spread.

Teddy and Bill Didn't Speak.

New York, Jan. 5.—President
Taft and former President Theodore Roosevelt occupied seats directly opposite each other in the Cathedral but took absolutely no notice of each other. At no time did they glance at each other and each seemed intent only on following the services.

ADMITS FLEEING MORE THAN 500 BACHELORS

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 6.—Florence Gamble, thirty-two years old, confessed to federal officers here to-day that she had corresponded with more than 500 bachelors over the country, from some of whom she received amounts ranging from $15 to $50. She withdrew her plea of not guilty to an information charging her with having swindled J. L.

Prater, of Arlington, Tex., out of $30 through her matrimonial schemes.

She was bound over to the federal grand jury and furnished $1,000 bond.

SEED CORN.

Last spring I had more orders for my Boone County White Seed Corn than I could fill, so if you expect to get seed corn from me this year, you should order now and I will ship at any date you name.
While my Boone County White Seed Corn raised in nineteen twelve is fine and made an average of ninety bushels per acre, yet I am confident I will not have enough to supply the demand.

The seed corn will, as usual, be shipped in the ear, in one-bushel wooden crates and will run about sixty ears per bushel. The price remains at three dollars per bushel, as before.

ROLAND NICHOLS LEADER OF MEN

Delivered Nearly 200 Lyceum Lectures Last Year.

Last season Roland A. Nichols delivered nearly 200 lectures, and every audience was enthusiastic. That is why he has been invited to lecture here.

The great interest that has been shown of late in the novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which is among "the five best sellers" of the season, brings to mind that it was Roland A. Nichols who assisted the author of that novel, Harold Bell

ROLAND A. NICHOLS.

Wright, converted him to Christianity, helped him through college and interested his publishers in Mr. Wright's first volume, "That Printer of Udell's."
It was in 1893 that Mr. Nichols, then an evangelist, first met "Harry" Wright, as he was then known, a tramp printer, at Grafton, O. The story of his conversion, his subsequent struggle to get an education at Hiram college, his entry into the ministry, and his later success as a novelist, make an interesting story, but we haven't room for it here. Mr. Nichols is a leader of men, a forceful personality and a great lecturer. He inspires confidence and makes people better without being "preachy."

Mr. Nichols will appear at Dr.
Bean's Opera House, Hartford, on next Tuesday evening, January 14, in his masterpiece, entitled: "The Man Worth While." It will be an entertainment of the highest order and well worthy of patronage.
Speaking of him, the Charleston (Ill.) Daily Courier says:

"The two addresses by Roland A.
Nichols yesterday were masterpieces and a newspaper report cannot do them justice. He has a magnificent voice, clear and sympathetic. His enunciation is perfect. He has wonderful descriptive powers. The vast throng followed him from argument to argument and from illustration to illustration in profound silence.
He held the rapt attention of the immense audience which filled both the auditorium and the lecture room."

$100 Per Plate

Was paid at a banquet to Henry Clay, in New Orleans in 1892.
Mighty costly for those with stomach trouble or indigestion. To-day people everywhere use Dr. King's New Life Pills for these troubles as well as liver, kidney and bowel disorders. Easy, safe, sure. Only 35 cents at James H. Williams.

Sixty-nine cases of cerebro-sym-ptomitis and thirty-five deaths have been reported in Dyer county, Tennessee, recently.

DAUGHTER GOES WITH FATHER WHO IS CHARGED

With Serious Offense and Is Being Taken Back to Scene Of Alleged Crime.

The Owensboro Inquirer of Monday says:

H. C. Hoffman, formerly a Methodist preacher, who has been in jail for several days, pending the arrival of Sheriff E. L. Smith from Deland, Florida, left for Deland
Sunday night on the 8:35 "Texas" train, in custody of the sheriff, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Gussie Hoffman.

Hoffman came to Owensboro several months ago and has been at the head of a Holy Rollers organization, having conducted services in a house on West Second street. On last Tuesday night he was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriffs Howard and Miller, on a warrant from Volusia county, Florida, charging him with having assaulted Flora Stanley, 10 years old, who was an inmate of the orphan's home at Enterprise, Florida. Hoffman att one time being in charge of that institution.

As soon as he was arrested Hoffman denied the accusation and said the warrant against him was the result of spite work, and that he would have no trouble in proving his innocence. He was placed in jail, where he remained until Sunday night.

At the request of Hoffman, he was allowed to go to his home on West Fifth street to change his clothes before going to the train.
He was accompanied to his home by Sheriff Smith and Jailer Calhoun.
Before leaving for the train Hoffman held a short prayer service, and asked the blessing of the Redeemer to guide him in his hour of need, and to forgive those who had undertaken to wreck his life. Hoffman then told his wife good-bye, and the sheriff and his prisoner, accompanied by Miss Gussie Hoffman, left for the train. The daughter said that she knew her father was an innocent man, and that she would stand by him in this great hour of trouble.

Birthday Party.

A most enjoyable dinner was given Sunday, December 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gray in honor of Mr. Gray and Mr. Ercl Blankenship, it being their birthday. Mr. Gray was fifty-six and Mr.

Blankenship twenty. Those present were: Misses Mae Casebler, Onice Bracken, Rosa Jackson, Messrs.
Raymond Daniel, Guy Taylor, Walter Casebler, Edward Jackson, Mrs. Ola Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Gray,
Guy, Gladys, Coakley and Ruby.

IN MEMORIAM.

Hartford, Ky., Jan. 4, 1913.
In loving remembrance of Claudy Rufus White, who was shot November 30, 1912.

Claudie was born October 16, 1894, and died aged 18 years, one month and 20 days. He leaves a father and mother, three sisters and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

Weep not, dear mamma,
For I am singing up above,
Come and meet my little brother
In the shining world of love.

Dearest papa, you will miss me
In a thousand different ways,
But you still have little Halley
Who will cheer your lonesome days.

Watch my grave, dearest loved ones,
Dearest friends, do not weep
When you think of how I struggled Just before I fell asleep.

His Mother, Mary E. White.

The Right Start

Someone has said that the way we start the New Year will in a measure be the way we will spend it. Believing that there is probably some truth in this statement, we want to urge on you a "right start." Now to make matters short, we want your business in 1913 and we believe that it will be to your interest to come our way. By doing this we are sure, beyond any doubt, that you will be starting right.

Begining to-day, we are putting many lines in our winter stock at a big reduction. Call and see them, and remember that IT PAYS TO TRADE WITH A HOUSE THAT SAVES YOU MONEY.

LOCAL NEWS AND PERSONAL POINTS

U. S. Carson pays cash for furs.

Dr. H. S. Sanders, the druggist, is visiting in Owensboro.

Mr. Ramey Duke and wife spent Sunday with relatives in Central City.

Messrs. J. W. Carter, Hartford, Route 1, was among The Herald's callers Friday.

Mr. S. D. Myers is quite ill of pneumonia at his residence in the Goshua neighborhood.

Miss Lella Glenn, Hartford, returned to Nashville last Friday to resume her studies in Belmont College.

Miss Mary Howe has returned to her old home here, after a few weeks sojourn with relatives in the South.

Postmaster John H. Thomas, of Narrows, as usual, gave The Herald a kind visit while in Hartford Saturday.

Messrs. L. F. Woerner, city, and S. H. Ellis, Hartford, Route 3, were among The Herald's callers Wednesday.

Esq. J. H. Patton, Hartford, and I. C. Porter, Hartford, Route 4, were callers at The Herald office Monday.

Mr. Shelby Stevens, Hartford, returned to Georgetown the latter part of last week to resume his studies in college.

Mr. L. O. Coleman, Paradise, was in Hartford Sunday en route to Lexington to resume his studies in the Kentucky University.

Mr. C. B. B. Felix, agent for Clemens Rptz Sons Co., Evansville, is in town, looking after some timber business for his company.

Messrs. Glenn Barnes and Estill Barnett, Hartford, have returned to Eliton to resume their studies in the Vanderbilt Training School.

Mrs. A. U. Hoeft, of Ayondale, Ala., has returned home, after spending the holidays with her sister, Miss Margaret Gunther, city.

Messrs. McHenry Holbrook, Douglas D. Felix and Herbert Felix, Hartford, left the first of the week for Lexington, where they will resume their work in the State University.

tist Church. The next service will be at the Presbyterian church tonight, conducted by Rev. Joiner, of the Methodist Church. To-morrow night Rev. R. D. Bennett will talk at the Baptist Church, concluding the series of services.

While walking along the streets of Louisville last Thursday, Mr. J. C. Riley, cashier of the First National Bank of Hartford, slipped and fell on the icy pavement and sustained painful injuries. The fall wrenched his back in a serious manner. He is yet in Louisville, being attended by his son, Dr. A. B. Riley, of Hartford. They will return the latter part of this week. Dr. Wallace Riley also went up to see his father, but returned Monday.

As an illustration of the value of advertising, let us take the case of Mr. J. B. Tappan, the jeweler of Hartford. He has been advertising some, more or less, ever since he came to Hartford, but last year (1912) he took more space than he ever did before in any one year. When he figured up his accounts a few days ago he found that he did $800 more business during 1912 than the year before or any previous year. Mr. Tappan very wisely credits this to his liberal use of printer's ink.

To-morrow, January 9, will be the birthday of perhaps the oldest person in Hartford, Mrs. Q. C. Shanks, who will be ninety-two years of age on that day. There are few people in the county who equal or surpass her age. Mrs. Shanks is remarkably spry and active for a lady of her age, reads without glasses and has a splendid memory for events of long ago. She is as normal and active as many persons much younger. She has a host of friends who wish her many years of continuation of a well spent life.

THE RELATED COLD WAVE SCHEDULED TO ARRIVE

Following the drenching rains that have fallen in this section of the country during the past 48 hours, the Government signal service is sending out its second warning of a sudden decrease in the temperature and a blizzard which is now raging in the West, and which was predicted for this section for Sunday.

The rains of Monday and Monday night were unusually heavy, and a great amount of water fell. It is expected that it will turn very much colder to-day, and there are indications of a snow, as reports from throughout the north and northwest country are to the effect that at this time there are temperatures falling far below zero, and snows and sleets that are impeding traffic.

BOY BADLY INJURED—CAUSE OF HURT UNKNOWN

Adrian Smith, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Smith of Utica, Daviess county, was badly hurt Friday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock. The boy had gone to the stable with his father to feed the horses. After Mr. Smith had fed the horses he started to return to the house, and a few steps away from the barn he found his son lying on the ground, bleeding and unconscious. He carried him into the house and after medical assistance was called it was found that his shoulder was dislocated and the collar bone broke in two places. The boy is doing well now and there are strong hopes of his recovery. It is not known how he came to get hurt unless it was by a cow. The boy says he does not know how he was injured.

Fiscal Court in Session.
The Ohio County Fiscal Court convened in court hall here yesterday with County Judge R. R. Wedding presiding, County Attorney C. E. Smith and the following Justices of the Peace present, viz.: Leslie Combs, J. C. Jackson, M. C. Cook, Thomas Sanders, Grant Pollard, J. L. Patton and John H. Miles. O. E. Scott the absentee, will likely be in this morning. The Fiscal Court will probably be in session the remainder of this week.

IN HERALD OF JUDGE BIRKHEAD'S CANDIDACY

Rockport, Ky., Jan. 4, 1913.
To The Herald:—I hear it rumored that Judge Birkhead, of Owensboro, will not offer for the Circuit Judgeship again, and the reason seems to be that he has had the office for two terms, and thinks it proper for him to stand back for some one else.

Now we as Democrats are in the position that Pat was in when he fell in the river and caught hold on the tail of the colt near by instead of the mare that was equally near. Some one yelled at him to take the mare's tail, but Pat answered promptly: "This is no time to swap horses."

Just so with us. This is certainly no time to "swap horses," especially when we have one of the very best horses that ever sat in judgment in our county. Judge Birkhead is not only one of the best Judges we ever had, but is the most popular man in public life in his district. We can not afford to let him drop out now. Let's use all the means at our command to induce him to reconsider the matter, and offer for another term. I am satisfied that he can have the whole Democratic vote, and a good percent of the independent vote of the district. I believe we can elect him by a large majority. Let the Democrats of old Ohio County get busy, get up petitions in every precinct, see that they are well circulated, and sent to the Judge for his consideration. We can not spare such men as Judge Birkhead. We need him; the Democratic party needs him; the State and county need him.

An Old Line Democrat.

County Board of Supervisors.
The following named gentlemen who compose the Ohio County Board of Supervisors convened in court hall Monday morning and are busily engaged in supervising the different tax lists. The personnel of the Board is: W. T. Keown, Fordville; W. C. Wallace, Hartford, Route 3; T. H. Benton, Centertown; E. F. Renter, Beaver Dam, Route 2; A. F. Midkiff, Olaton, Route 1. Deputy Assessor L. B. Loney was chosen and is serving as clerk for the Board. The Assessor, Bernard Felix, is present and assisting the Board.

CHILD DRINKS WHISKEY; DIES IN CONVULSIONS

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 6.—A few hours after he drank nearly a half pint of whiskey, left on a table by his father, Angus Johnson, 6 years old, to-day died in convulsions.

The child's father placed the bottle on the table after taking a drink and walked into another room. He was gone but a short time and on his return the child was draining the last of the liquor.

A physician immediately was called and applied a stomach pump, but without avail.

THE CRIMINAL TERM OF THE DAVIESS COURT

Is Now in Session At Owensboro With 126 Cases On the Docket.

The January term of the Daviess criminal court was convened in Owensboro Monday morning by Judge Birkhead.

Although there are 126 cases on the criminal court docket, it is certain that a comparatively small part of that number will be tried during the term, as the defendants in many of the cases are not in custody, nor are they before the court on bond, while there are many other cases that are to be tried at this term.

Most of the charges against the various defendants are for petty offenses and there are a few cases in which more serious charges are brought against the prisoners. There is not a single case in which murder is charged against a prisoner, nor are there any alleged murderers in the county jail at this time.

There are a number of prisoners in jail charged with offenses of lesser importance and there are others who have been held to the action of the grand jury that have not yet been indicted. Many of the defendants are out on bond, but will appear before the court when the cases against them are called.

The petit jury was empanelled yesterday.

A Fancy Dress Party.

Misses Holbrook and Pirtle, of Hartford, entertained Wednesday evening with a fancy dress party at the home of the former. An enjoyable evening was spent in playing "500" and dancing the "Virginia Reel."

Some of the characters represented were "Indians," "Colonial Maids," "Clowns," "Night," "June," "Flame," "Flower Girls," "Clergymen," "Lavender and Old Lace," "College Girls," "Workmen," "Base Ball Players," "George Washington" and "Negroes."

A delightful lunch was served to the following guests: Misses Mary Smith, of Fordville; Nancy Ford, Lella Glenn, Winnie D. Shimmerman, Lucile Taylor, Ruth Spalding, Mattie Duke, Gertrude Flener, Louise Phillips, Marjorie Holbrook and Lucile Pirtle; Messrs. Ross Taylor, Park Taylor, Hoyt Taylor, Selby Stevens, Fred May, William Moore, Will Riley, Estill Barnett, Smith Hoover, Sam Joiner, James Glenn and McHenry Holbrook.

CERIALVO.

Jan. 6.—Mr. George Canebler and wife, of Paradise, visited relatives here Sunday.

Mr. Cecil Uzzle has moved onto a farm at Knott's Ferry.

Misses Lennie Hudson and Ora Milner, Livermore, are visiting friends and relatives here.

Mr. Eddie Heflin and wife, Owensboro, visited Mrs. Heflin's mother, Mrs. Zilla Harnard, here last week.

Mrs. Jennie Everley and son Vernon visited at Cleaton several days recently.

Little Miss Mary Ethel Everly spent several days last week with her aunt, Mrs. Eddie Hill, of Nelson.

Mr. J. W. Baker has returned home after spending several days with his son, Mr. Leonard Baker, of Tennessee.

WIT IN THE PULPIT

Preachers With a Sense of Humor or the Gift of Repartee.

A DUEL BETWEEN PUNSTERS.

The Exchange of Compliments That Spiced the Sermons of Rev. Mr. Walker and Rev. Mr. Read—Brother Moore's Grim Retort.

When the march of pulpit oratory and humor was less advanced than at present a number of pious parishioners resolved to compliment their beloved pastor with a horse. After a great deal of scripping together they accumulated funds sufficient to purchase a saddle, which was forthwith dispatched to the minister, with an intimation that the horse would be sent at a more convenient season.

Week after week, however, passed on, and no word of the minister's. This dilatoriness would never do, thought the reverend gentlemen, and accordingly one Sunday afternoon he took occasion to introduce the subject in winding up a discourse on the unspeakable loveliness of charity.

"Now, my friends," said the preacher, "if that said horse be an upping grass you by at the house in a day or two, I ken what I'll do."

Here the minister snote the pulpit in a manner that made the hearts of the congregation melt within them like wax, while he, stern man, continued his appeal to their pecuniary feelings so long, and repeated the fearful threat, "I ken what I'll do," so often that one frightened hearer said:

"And what will you do, sir?"

"Why, man," said the minister coolly, "I'll just sell the saddle."

The Rev. Mr. Walker of Connecticut saw his friend, the Rev. Mr. Read, sitting in one of the pews on a Sunday morning and, leaving the pulpit, went to Read and urged him to preach for him. Read begged off, as he was providentially detained in town over the Sabbath and had no "preparation" with him. But Walker was pressing, and at length his friend yielded to his importunity and entered the pulpit. But he had no text, and after some reflection pitched upon Job 1, 7, "Then Satan answered the Lord and said, From going to and fro in the earth and from walking up and down in it."

From this passage he drew the doctrine and announced it boldly, that the devil was a great Walker. He rung the changes on the name of his friend till the people signified their notice by a general snore.

Walker took the pulpit in the afternoon and returned his friend's compliments by taking for his text Matthew 21, 7, "A reed shaken with the wind." "The doctrine of the text," he said, "is the instability of friends." On this theme he discovered till Read wished that he had never ventured his wit in the pulpit at the expense of his friend Walker.

In the south of New Jersey some years ago there traveled over some of the hardest counties a good, faithful, hard working brother named James Moore. He was devoted to the itinerancy and a true loyal Methodist, plain, pointed and sharp in all his preaching and exhortations. He had been laboring a year on one of his circuits, and, before leaving for his new field, he gave his people his farewell sermon. At the close he said:

"My dear brethren, this is my last address to you. I am going from you, and you may never hear the voice of James Moore again."

"Amen!" came loudly from the seat before him.

He looked at the man with a little surprise; but, thinking it was a mistake, went on. "My days on earth will soon be numbered. I am an old man and you may not only never hear the voice of James Moore, but never see his face again."

"Amen!" was shouted from the same seat, more vigorously than before.

There was no mistaking the design now. The preacher looked at the man. He knew him to be a hard, grinding man, stingy and merciless to the poor. He continued with his address: "May the Lord bless all those of you who have done your duty, who have honored him with your substance, who have been kind to the poor, and, pausing and looking the intruder straight in the eye and pointing to him with his finger, "may his curse rest on those who have cheated the Lord and ground the poor under their heels! Say amen to that, brother!"

He was not interrupted again.

It was the Rev. Bowdoin Hill's habit to ride to church in an old family carriage, a practice too aristocratic, in the judgment of one of his flock, who determined to rebuke it. It was customary in his chapel for notes to be sent to the pulpit, requesting prayers for various objects, and one Sabbath Hill was proceeding with the reading of these requests as usual when he found himself in the midst of one to the following purport:

"Prayers are requested for the Rev. Mr. Hill, that he may be more humble and, like his divine Master, who, instead of riding in a carriage, was content to be borne on an ass."

Having read the notice, he lifted the spectacles to his forehead and, looking around the house, observed that it was quite true he had been guilty of the fault alleged, but if the writer would step around to the vestry door after service, saddled and bridled, he would have no objection to ride home, after his Master's example, on the back of an ass.—George Bancroft Griffith in New York Tribune.

MRS. BURNETT'S MYSTERY.

The Unsolved Enigma of the Letter on Her Writing Desk.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett told a true story which she called "The Mystery of My Life." And truly it is a mystifying occurrence.

It was some time ago, while she was living in England. One night she and a friend were spending a quiet evening by the fire, chatting and reading. Mrs. Burnett's friend, be it understood, sat throughout the event in an armchair by the fire and did not leave her place until all was over, so that, as in the case of conjurers, there could have been "no deception" on her part.

Mrs. Burnett went in the course of the evening to her desk and wrote a letter. She signed, folded, directed, sealed and stamped it and stood it up against a silver cigarette box on the center table. Then she arose to go and sit by the fire again.

Presently, wishing the letter posted, she started to take steps toward having it mailed. She looked for it on the center table, and the letter was not there. She looked all over the table in vain. She rubbed her eyes and looked again. She knew she had stood that letter up against the silver cigarette box, but it was not there. No one had entered the room; no one had left it. Her friend had sat motionless by the fire.

Mrs. Burnett said to herself: "I know—sometimes one's eyes are held. A thing may be staring one straight in the face and not be seen. It may seem to be masquerading as something else." And she began systematically examining each object on the table separately, picking it up, naming it, and setting it down again, to make sure that it was itself and not the letter.

"Is this the letter? No: this is a Dresden china bonbon dish. Is this it? No: this is a brass candlestick. This is a magnifying glass, this is an ivory paper cutter, this is a carved wooden box, this is a rose jar, this is an ash receiver, and this, finally, is a silver cigarette box, and there is nothing else on the table, and there is neither hide nor hair of a letter to be seen."

Completely at a loss, Mrs. Burnett strolled about the room to examine other possible surfaces where the letter might have been placed had it not emphatically and unmistakably been put upon the center table against the cigarette box. She searched on the mantelpiece, on her desk, on the piano, on the bookcase—no letter. In discouragement she turned again to the center table for mother hunt. There stood the letter demurely leaning against the silver cigarette box, exactly as she had placed it.

And that such things are possible and that they happen to such perfectly sane, clear eyed, level headed and reliable people is perfectly credible. Have we not all had similar experiences? And if they were not possible whence come the world old beliefs in elementals, in mischievous sprites, in elves and brownies who play pranks upon us poor, dull mortals? Explain it how we may, that is what happened to Mrs. Burnett.—New York Press.

Our Cooling Earth.

It may be said without bestation that the polar regions are not growing warmer. The redhot cannon ball thrown into the street begins immediately to cool off, and that is exactly what is happening to the earth. It is steadily cooling off and will eventually become a dead and frozen world. That means, of course, that the polar region is constantly encroaching upon the equatorial region and that after some millions of years the cold of the arctic circle will prevail over the entire globe. What the moon is now the earth will eventually become.—New York American.

The Devilfish.

In some places the stingray is called the "devilfish," not by reason of its appearance, but because of its armed tail, a most dreadful weapon, with which it has been known to kill men. This tail is long and thin, like a whip, and the stingray employs a wonderful accuracy of aim when using it. In case of attack the stingray lashes it at the enemy. It rarely misses. Inasmuch as the end of this tail is provided with a sharp "thorn" or spur, almost like the spur of a gamecock, but much longer and keener, the wound inflicted is most serious.

Tennyson Didn't Know.

"If Tennyson had lived in my suburb," said paternalistic the other night as he sat with his check book before him, ruefully contemplating his gas bill, "he would never have written 'Honor the Light Brigade, honor the charge they made' but perhaps gas companies had consciences in his day."—Christian Work.

Meant It All.

He—My dear, you talked in your sleep a long time last night. She—What did I talk about? He—Why, it seemed to be mainly abuse of me. She—I wasn't asleep.—London Tit-Bits.

His Limitation.

"I presume you never quarrel with your wife?"

"Certainly not!" replied skinny little Mr. Hennypeck. "I am merely a husband, not a lion tamer."—Judge.

A True Believer.

"I always believe in saving something for a rainy day."

"How much have you saved?"

"Oh, I haven't saved anything, but I believe in it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

It is only from our efforts to obtain a thing that we learn its value.

THE ROLE DUST PLAYS.

It Gives Us Clouds, Rain, Snow, Sunset Effects and Blue Skies.

While much evil has been attributed to dust, very little attention has been given to its benefits. Without dust there would be no blue sky nor any diffused light. Man's only light of day would be that directly radiated by the sun.

Light is produced by the vibrations of ether in the form of waves of variable extent, and these short or long waves are differently reflected, according to the dimensions of the grains of dust that they meet as they descend to earth. The fine dust reflects only the shortest waves, the blue. Dust of medium thickness reflects the yellow and the green waves, while the coarsest dust reflects nothing but the red.

We owe the blue of the sky to the fine dust in the atmospheric heights, where the air is purest. When the wind sets the dust in motion the blue turns to gray. The smoke of a cigar is blue as it issues from the cigar, while the smoke issuing from the mouth of the smoker is whitish gray because the particles of the gray smoke have increased in volume by fixing water vapor. The blue smoke of a burning cigar is like the blue sky, and as the water vapor is fixed by the smoke close to the mouth of the smoker so the vapor risen from the seas is condensed on the particles of atmospheric dust.

Without dust earth could have no rain. Not a drop of all the water evaporated from the oceans could come to earth on anything but the bearer of its condensations, the dust. Were it not for atmospheric dust there would be no clouds, no fog, no rain, no snow, no splendid sunsets, no azure skies. The surface of the ground, the trees, the houses, men and animals would be the objects on which water vapor would condense. The clothing of man and the fur of the animal would drip with water.—Harpers Weekly.

CARE FOR SICK ON TRAINS.

German Roads Have Special Cars For Transporting Invalids.

Excellent facilities are afforded in Germany for transporting invalids and cripples who are unable to walk, according to our consul at Brunswick. The German railroad system provides a first class car for invalids who can afford to use it. This car is fitted with every possible convenience for the sick. A special apartment, opening on the level of the station platform, with a double door, so that a stretcher can be carried in without the slightest difficulty, is set apart for the invalid and attendants. The balance of the car contains a kitchen, where meals can be prepared, and a section handsomely upholstered for members of the family or accompanying friends. For invalids who travel second or third class an apartment on an ordinary car is used, opening in like manner with a double door on the station platform.

The charges for transporting sick and helpless persons have hitherto been moderate. For invalids traveling third class the charge has been the cost of four tickets, free transport being granted for two attendants. This rate is still granted when the car containing the invalid apartment belongs to a regular train with a fixed destination; otherwise in the future six tickets second class must be purchased. In addition to the cost of these tickets there will be an additional charge of 7 pfennigs (1/2 cent) per axle and kilometer (0.62 mile) for the time the car runs empty before and after the transport of the invalid to the point of destination.

For example, if the invalid is transported from Berlin to Hamburg, 290 kilometers (180 miles), when the car containing the invalid apartment forms part of the regular train the charge will be 35.5 marks ($54.75); if the same car is specially ordered the charge will be 164.64 marks ($246.96).—United States Consular Reports.

A Secret Andrew Lang Kept.

Andrew Lang unraveled many historical puzzles, but there was one mystery the secret of which he knew but would not tell. He knew the truth about the famous murder of which Alan Breck was suspected and for which James Stewart was hanged. Stevenson in "Kidnapped" lays the crime to the account of a mysterious companion of Alan's, and in so far that neither Alan nor James was the murderer he was right, said Mr. Lang. But the identity of the assassin was a clan secret, revealed to Mr. Lang as a fellow clansman, and he refused to make it public.

The Crayfish.

A curious mistake occurs in the word crayfish. The name was borrowed from the French, who call this lobsterlike animal crevise. The English thought that because it lived in the water it must be a fish, says the Itaja Yoga Messenger, and so we always call it the crayfish. Of course the little creature is no more a fish than a seal is a fish, or a sponge or an oyster, although they also live in the water.

Contagious.

"Is insomnia a contagious disease?" asked the host.

"No," replied the wise guy. "Why do you ask?"

"When my neighbor's dog can't sleep at night I can't either," replied the host.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Where to Have a Boil.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich, commenting once upon the trials of Job, remarked that the only proper place to have a boil was between "John" and "O'Neil."

"A Gallon of Misery."

Booker T. Washington once said at a dinner that he could not speak for temperance more effectively than to quote the words of old uncle Calhoun: "When I see a man a-goin' home wid a gallon o' whiskey an' a half a pound o' meat, dat's temperance lecture enough for me—an' I see it every day. An' I knows dat every'ing in dat man's house an' on de same scale—a gallon o' misery to every half pound o' comfort."

Cut the High Cost of Living.

W. H. Chapman, Winnebago, Neb., tells how he did it. "My two children had a very bad cough and the doctor's medicines did them no good. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and before it was all used the children were free and cured of their cough. I saved a doctor's bill for one 25c bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." A mean, stuffy cold, with hoarse, wheezy breathing is just the kind that runs into bronchitis or pneumonia. Don't trifle with such serious conditions but take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. Contains no opiates. Sold by all dealers.

Ingenuious Paul.

"Poultney Bigelow says that a sure way to health is for a man to dress as Adam did," said the Cheerful Idiot. "How does he figure it?"

"Why, after a man tried it, the simple fare and the regular hours of jail life would work wonders," replied the Boob.

SPECIAL NOTICE
In regard to
OBITUARIES, RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT, &c.

The Hartford Herald has adopted a new rule in regard to Obituaries, Resolutions of Respect, Cards of Thanks, &c., whether written at the behest of lodges, churches or individuals, and that is, we shall charge at the rate of two cents per line for all such articles, except obituary poetry, which will be one cent per word, straight. This is the smallest rate we charge for anything and is only one-fifth of our regular rate. The amount, in cash or stamps, must accompany each article, or it will not be printed. Six words average a line. An ordinary reading and every separate character or initial letter counts as a word. The heading and the signature both count one line each, even if they are only a word or two. All obituary poetry, straight through, one cent per word. Contributors please remember.

It is doubtful if some people ever say just what they think, even when they talk to themselves.

One way to improve your memory is to do something you would like to forget.

Many a woman is blind to a man's faults because he threw gold dust in her eyes.

WHEN LIFE IS DONE

Some Peoples Give Their Dead to Animals to Devour.

PECULIAR FUNERAL CUSTOMS

Among Many Races There Are Different Methods of Burial For Men and Women—Rites That Are Inspired by Fear of the Spirit of the Departed.

Strange indeed are many of the ceremonies attending the disposal of the dead in different parts of the world. And, following the natural order of things, the more primitive the nation the more primitive its methods. The rudest mode now prevalent is that of simply leaving the body exposed, but the ways of exposure vary considerably. Some wandering tribes not on the maxim, "Where the tree falls, there let it lie," and, leaving the dead behind, move their camp to pastures new. The Wanyamwele, however, carry their dead into the forest to be devoured by beasts of prey, while some of the tribes of Guinea throw the corpse into the sea.

The Kamehadles keep dogs to consume their dead, under the strange impression that those who are devoured by dogs will be the masters of the dogs in the world beyond. The Parsees, although a cultured nation, place their dead in a round tower, called a tower of silence, and the vultures who make such towers their habitation finish the work. In Dahomey it was once stated that a person whose body has been struck by lightning is hacked to pieces and devoured by the priests.

Burial, of course, has many different forms, the simplest of which is perhaps the piling of stones or thorns over the body to keep off wild beasts. Some tribes bury their children by the roadside, so that their souls may enter into the bodies of the passersby. Burial in the earth is an earlier custom than that of cremation, embalming, or drying the body by suspending it from a tree, and many nations have more than one custom—for instance, merely burying their women, while the men are embalmed or dried.

An instance of several customs being in common use in one tribe is to be seen among the Kalmucks. They either expose, bury, burn, throw the body into the water, pile over it a heap of stones or build a hut over it, doing whatever the priest considers to be the most suitable. The position of the body also varies considerably, but as a general rule the head is laid either to the east or to the west. The Hongkies, however, are an exception, for they bury the women with the face to the south, and the men with the face to the north.

"Among the primitive nations the expressions of grief at the loss of the deceased, grief not untinged with fear of him in his new state, and vent in self-inflicted tortures and other tremendously exaggerated expressions of woe. The inhabitants of New Zealand—the aborigines that is—bedaub themselves with pigment and wound themselves with broken shells. The Hawaiians go still further, knocking out their teeth and cutting off an ear or finger joint, while, when Hawaii was under the rule of monarchs, at the king's death the nation at large feigned madness through grief, and this was the signal for unbridled license of every description.

No nation is there, as a whole, which believes that the soul does not continue to exist after it leaves the body, and the origin of many funeral rites is the belief that death means the soul's transition from one state to another and that it is necessary to enter into the soul on the journey; hence it is that wives, servants, horses, money, weapons, musical instruments, meat and drink are among the things buried with the body. The Laplanders supply the corpse with food, steel and tin, and wherewith to obtain light by the way, and the Gonds even place tooth picks in the grave.

Rather a touching custom is prevalent among the Greenlanders, for on the death of a child they bury a dog with it to guide it, certain that a dog will find his way anywhere. The Hindus have a custom of placing a paper passport in the hand of the deceased to be shown to Peter at the gate of heaven, while at one time in Wales "sin eaters" were employed, who by eating a loaf of bread over the dead body took upon themselves the burden of the deceased's sins.

It would seem that the fear of being haunted by the ghost of the departed has had no small effect upon many of the rites practiced for the Egyptians turn the body round and round so as to confuse the spirit's idea of direction, while the peasants of Brandenburg pour a pull of water after the corpse to prevent its return and the aborigines of Australia remove the nails of the dead, so that they may not scratch their way out of the grave.—London Globe.

Queer Justice.
Prison Visitor—My friend, you ought not to complain. You are here to satisfy the demands of justice. Prisoner. Not much I am. For months my creditors kept asking me to raise money and when I raised a check they put me in jail. I'm blamed if I can see how you call that justice.

The weakest spot in every man is where he thinks himself the wisest.—Mumford.

ATTACKS OF HICCUPS.

If Persistent They May Carry With Them a Grave Warning.

Hiccup is the spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm. It may be a symptom of the most trivial importance that yields to the simplest kind of treatment or of a serious and intractable affection that persists for a long time and even produces death by exhaustion. No one may hope to be entirely free from hiccup; in its simplest form it is extremely frequent, but upon the whole it is more common with children than with adults.

Sometimes the attack comes on without any apparent cause, but it may follow a sudden chill, such as that caused by stepping from a warm bed to a cold room; it may accompany a violent fit of crying, or it may be due to the distension of the stomach by food or gas. Severe fright or nervous shock has also been known to lead to intractable attacks of hiccup.

A feeble infant with whom hiccup comes to be of daily occurrence often falls into a state of extreme exhaustion. In such a case great care should be taken to ward off or put an early stop to the attack.

Where there is any serious disorder of the abdominal organs, persistent hiccup is a disquieting symptom, and when it occurs as an accompaniment of kidney disease it is almost always of grave significance.

In simple cases very slight measures are sufficient to put an end to the attack. Anything that causes a feeling of suffocation will generally effect a cure, because that feeling naturally results in a forced contraction of the diaphragm. One old-fashioned remedy is the slow sipping of a glass of water; another is the drawing and holding of deep breaths at regular intervals.

In the case of small babies, a mere change of position will sometimes stop an attack. When the hiccup does not yield promptly to simple measures, careful search should be made for the cause. In the case of infants or small children, this is usually connected with the diet.—Youth's Companion.

KISSING IN ENGLAND.

Its Prevalence at One Time Used to Puzzle Foreign Visitors.

Kissing, which has been officially prohibited at the railway station of Sarven, in Switzerland, flourished in England in the seventeenth century to such an extent that the foreign visitor was bewildered by its prevalence. Nicholas de Beihlen, who traveled in England in 1833, writes that "my brother and I behaved very rudely on one occasion, being unaware that it was customary in that country to kiss the corner of the mouth of ladies, instead of shaking hands, as we do in Hungary. We were invited to dine at the house of a gentleman of high rank and found his wife and three daughters (one of them married) ready to receive us. We kissed the girls, but not the married ladies, and thereby greatly offended the latter. Duval apologized for our blunder and told us that when saluting we must always kiss the senior lady first and leave the girls to the last."

The learned and sedate Erasmus in 1499 wrote a Latin letter from England to his friend Fausto Anfronius advising him to come here at once, for, he remarks: "Here are girls with angelic faces who will receive you with kisses. They come to visit you, kisses again. Should they meet you anywhere, kisses in abundance—in fine, wherever you move there is nothing but kisses."

In 1404 a Bohemian nobleman named Leo von Rozmital visited England and in the "Journal of His Travel," published in 1577, he noted: "It is the custom there that on the arrival of a distinguished stranger from foreign parts the hostess with all her family goes out to meet him and the guests are required to kiss them all, and this among the English was the same as shaking hands among other nations."—Chicago News.

Pythons Like Milk.

"The fondness of pythons for milk is notorious," said an official of the zoo. "A python will follow a bowl of milk for miles and then be perfectly satisfied with the milk as a reward for its journey. In India sometimes the natives in traveling through the forests carry a torch aloft for fear of wild animals, and one man will bring up the rear carrying a bowl of milk. In this way they sometimes enter a town, followed by half a dozen pythons, as they say in India, 'wagging their tails behind them.'"—New York Times.

Not Worrying.

Young Wife—I want you to promise me one thing. If we would avoid trouble we must live within our means, and to help me in doing this I want your promise that you will never run in debt. Young Husband—I will promise, my love. If I ever get in debt I'll let the other fellows do the running.

Will and Won't.

"Is yer gonna ter let dat mawel do as he ploness?" asked Uncle Ephraim's wife. "Wha's yer will power?" "My will power's all right," he answered. "You jest want ter come out hyar an' measure dis here mawel's won't power."—Christian Register.

OUR BIG CONDORS

In Weight and Spread of Wing They Surpass All Other Birds.

MYSTERY IN THEIR FLIGHTS.

With Fixed Outspread Wings These Wonderful Birds Will Sweep Upward and Onward Through the Air Without the Movement of a Feather.

It is not commonly known that we have a condor in the United States, yet there is one on the Pacific coast that in weight and spread of wing surpasses all other birds. From tip to tip of wing it measures more than ten feet, considerably more than the condor of the Andes and about a yard more than the largest eagle or swan.

This condor is black, tinged with brown, except under the wings, where there is a long, narrow strip of almost pure white running the whole length of the wing and widening near the body. It has no ruff round the neck, but a fringe of long, narrow black feathers on the back of the neck gives it a savage appearance. It nests among the rocks in lofty cliffs, laying several white eggs much larger than those of the turkey or goose. From 1875 to 1885 condors were so abundant in southern California that I used to see them almost every day, but now they are found only in the higher mountains. Their eggs bring $100 each in the larger museums of the country.

If an animal is sick or disabled the condor rarely hesitates to attack it, and its fate is soon sealed if it is not strong enough to defend itself or escape its enemy.

Like the condor of the Andes, that of California will so gorge itself with food at times that it can be lassoed in the quick dash of a good horse. A friend of mine at San Jacinto had one that had been caught in that way. But, although he had thousands of sheep and cattle, he had to give the bird away because he could not afford to feed it. It would eat a whole sheep at a meal and then look hungry and sad, as if it were badly treated.

Once clear of the ground, with wings outspread, the condor has no trouble in bearing away into the clouds a dinner that will last a week or two.

Standing on the ground at a distance this great bird looks much like a big black Newfoundland dog sitting up for a cracker, but in the air it surpasses in grace and variety of action every other wanderer of the skies. The whooping crane, that floats like a speck of down in the remotest blue; the frigate bird, whose wing seems never made to fold, even the albatross, are all clumsy and monotonous compared with the condor. It travels in a series of winding lines, in which symmetry and grace always govern the boldest sweeps or the highest bursts of speed.

Dozens of times I have laid among the rocks and had the condor come so near that I could plainly see the sparkle of the brown eye in the vivid red of the bare head, and with the strong glass that I always carried in my hand I have brought the bird much nearer. Yet never could I detect the slightest motion of wing or feathers beyond a lazy flap or two at intervals of several minutes or a simple inbreathing of the tips of the wings, as if feeling the breeze to be sure it was there. And the bird often floats an hour or more without even this slight motion.

It is quite wonderful when the condor sets his wings and slides sideways across a strong breeze without any descent, yet without falling backward, and still more so to see the great bird return with a swing of half a mile or more, arriving hundreds of feet above the point of starting and perhaps hundreds of yards ahead of it.

When I have been well hidden among the rocks I have seen a condor within a few yards hanging on the air for many seconds at a time—not like the hawk balancing itself to fall upon some bird below, but seeming to sleep there as peacefully and quietly as a summer cloud. Then suddenly the bird has turned half over and cleft the air with a sharp hiss of wing feathers, for which there was not the slightest motion of a wing to account. And all this time the condor has been rising instead of falling, and I have vainly watched the fringed tips of the great wings for the slightest sign of motion.—T. S. Van Dyke in Youth's Companion.

James Lick's Test.

Tick's is told of James Lick, the eccentric San Francisco millionaire, who founded the famous observatory bearing his name. When taking any one into his service he always asked the person to plant a tree upside down, the roots in the air, the branches underground. If there were any protest the man was at once sent away. Lick saying that he wanted only men who would obey orders strictly.

Bunkoed.

"Son, why don't you play chess? It's great fun. First you make a sawdust ring."

Where'll I get any sawdust, dad?

"Here's the saw. Just saw some of that cordwood into stove lengths. You can make all the sawdust you make."—Pittsburgh Post.

Not Crazy.

"Do you think Oscar proposed to me merely on account of my money?" "Well, my dear, you know he must have had some reason."—Chicago Herald.

Beauty of body was ever esteemed to proceed from a due reverence to God.—Bacon.

A TRIP IN ASIA MINOR.

Scene Along the Route From Constantinople to Antioch.

The modern traveler in visiting Antioch or Pisidia will be likely to start from Constantinople. He will take the steam ferry at the bustling Bosphorus bridge, the most famous and the most crowded bridge perhaps in the world. He will land at Haidar Pasha after a half hour's sail, where he will take a very comfortable train on the Anatolian railway, which is built and equipped in first class German style.

For fifty miles the road winds beside the beautiful sea of Marmora, affording charming glimpses of mountain and ocean, of peaceful bay and bold surf washed headlands. At Iznik the road begins to rise and great granite mountains, snow covered through much of the year, come into view.

Through stern, rocky, barren defiles the railroad winds its way, occasionally skirting a small village of adobe houses surrounded by vineyards and by groves of olives and mulberries. The silk worm is a chief source of the little wealth of this country, and the thousands of acres of mulberry trees furnish him with food.

We are now indeed in the land of the classics. This is the very route that Cyrus the Younger followed with his great army, 400 years before Christ, in the expedition of which Xenophon tells us.

At the town of Chal, where we arrive at noon on the second day, the army of Cyrus minted and coined for five days, demanding an increase of pay. Thus we see that strikes and quarrels over wages are not altogether things of modern invention. Near here, too, was fought a great battle a hundred years later, when Seleucus I., the founder of Antioch and the mighty ruler of all this region, defeated Antigonus, the one-eyed general of Cappadocia.—Christian Herald.

BIG THINGS OF OURS.

Texas, for instance, and Counties Larger Than Some States.

"Is the United States as large as France?" a young Parisian once asked an American. "Sir," replied the proud Texan, "my own state alone is bigger than your whole republic."

An interesting method of demonstrating the size of the Lone Star State is to spread out a map of our country and stretch a string across Texas the longest way. Then, placing one end of the string at Chicago, it will be found that the other end will extend into either the Atlantic ocean or the gulf of Mexico.

The largest counties in the United States are Custer, in Montana, and San Bernardino, in California. Both have a little more than 20,000 square miles. Inside the boundaries of either of these counties might be placed the states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Delaware and New Jersey. Contrast these with Bristol county, Rhode Island, the smallest of all—twenty-five square miles—and one gets a good idea of the geographical differences in this broad land.

New York county shows the largest population of any county in the Union.

An interesting geographical fact meets one at a point about fifty miles from Durango, Colo. There, by stepping a few feet in either direction, one can walk in four different commonwealths in as many seconds. These are Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

Within 100 miles of one another California offers the highest and the lowest elevations in this country—Mount Whitney, with its 14,494 feet and Death valley, with its 450 feet below the sea level.—New York Sun.

Naming the Kangaroo.

The kangaroo came by his name rather strangely. When first Australia was discovered a sailor pointed to a kangaroo and asked a native what they called that animal. The poor black man having never met an Englishman before, had no idea what the sailor was talking about and replied in his own language, "Kangaroo" that is, "I do not understand." The sailor foolishly supposed this was the name of the animal in the Australian language, and ever since we have called the animal kangaroo. "I do not understand."

In Perfect Health.

"I'm a very nervous person," said the applicant for room and board to the burly landlord of the health resort hotel. "I don't want to associate with other nervous people." "You can associate with me," laughed the landlord. "There's nothing the matter with my nerve." And he sent the prospective guest to a 7 by 11 bed room that was only $40 a week.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Quickly Reduced.

Briggs—Do you put your pocketbook under your pillow when you sleep in a hotel?

Griggs—Never. You see, the first few nights the pocketbook would make my pillow too high; then after a week or so there isn't enough in it to be anxious about.—Boston Transcript.

His Possibilities.

Physician to a magnate: Seek some quiet, secluded place where you can sleep well and where no one will pay any attention to you. Magnate (in doubt): Well, doctor, I say, how will going to church do?—Chicago News.

No Chance.

Employee—I will file more salary I am going to get married. Employer—Sorry, but I'll have to reduce it. I'm going to get married myself.—Chicago News.

WAR FUND IS BEING RAISED IN AMERICA

By Chinese For Conflict They Believe On With Russia Over Mongolia.

New York, Jan. 4.—A huge war fund, reaching into several millions, is being raised by the Chinese of this country. It was learned today.

The money is being gathered for the conflict which the Chinese believe imminent with Russia over Mongolia.

In the East close upon $1,000,000, it is asserted, already has been subscribed through the committees of the Chinese Merchants Association and the Young China Society of this and neighboring cities.

Subscription books have been sent all over the country, into every hamlet which boasts of a Chinese laundryman or merchant. In Los Angeles and San Francisco, it is said, more than $1,000,000 has been raised.

Owing to the nature of the contributions and the gathering of arms, the Chinese have enveloped this extraordinary war move in the utmost secrecy.

Yet during the New-Year's celebration, when Chinatown toasted their new-found liberties across seas, there were a number of agitated meetings in the various societies and associations and the purpose of the contributions was revealed.

It was said at the office of the Chinese Reform News that seven-eighths of the Chinese were holding themselves in readiness for war.

HOPEWELL.

DUNDEE.

Dec. 6.—Stripping tobacco is the "go" now. Since it has been sold, the farmers seem to want to put it into money, but some are not satisfied with the prices that it sold for.

There have been several deaths near here in the last few days. Henry C. Wright, one of Ohio county's best citizens, died near here Wednesday night, of pneumonia. He was sick only nine days. He was buried in the home graveyard Friday. His brothers, Tom and Caleb, came in from Morehouse, Mo. He leaves a wife, three daughters, and one son—Mrs. Dr. Denton, Misses Emma and Clova and son Claude. Henry Wright was a man who will be missed by his friends and neighbors. He was always ready to lend a helping hand to the needy, poor or distressed. He was 54 years old and belonged to the M. E. Church.

Old Uncle Sam Tanner died Thursday night, of old age and la grippe.

Bennie Whitehouse and wife, while moving from Mr. Wid Tau's last Friday with a load of plunder to another farm, on the road they found their 3-weeks-old baby dead in its mother's arms. They think they had the little fellow's head wrapped too tightly and caused it to smother, as it had not been sick.

Dr. M. T. McDowell, of Salsow, Ok., who spent Xmas here with his wife and friends, has returned to his home in Oklahoma.

Mr. Frank Moseley, of Memphis, Tenn., where he is attending a medical school, spent Xmas here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Moseley.

Dr. J. A. Duff is thinking of moving to McHenry in a few days to locate.

Dr. D. H. Godsey has moved from Shreve to Sulphur Springs. We welcome the Dr. and his good family into this vicinity.

Mr. Alex Harrison has moved into his new house here.

Misses Isabel Acton and Jean Weller spent from Saturday until Monday with Miss Mollie Renfrow at Sunnysdale.

Hung Jury in Deaton Case. Winchester, Ky., Jan. 6.—The jury in the case of Fletcher Deaton, the first of fifteen charged with conspiracy to murder Ed Callahan, to be tried, late to-day reported that it had disagreed, after being out since Saturday noon. They were dismissed. The jury is reported to have stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction.

MOTHER FELL DEAD OF FRIGHT, KILLING BABY

Uniontown, Penn., Jan. 6.—When Mrs. W. E. Johnston, 30 years old, wife of a wealthy farmer of Cheat Haven, was in her home early this morning with her one-year-old daughter, a man, armed with a revolver, appeared at one of the windows and demanded that she open the door. Instead of complying the woman barricaded the door.

Just as the man broke open the door Mrs. Johnston fell dead on the floor, at the same time crushing her little daughter to death.

A short time later officers arrested W. H. Simmons, who was in the vicinity.

Farmers attempted to take Simmons from his captors but were unsuccessful, although he was roughly handled and required medical attention when brought to the Uniontown Jail.

CLEAR RUN.

Jan. 6.—Rev. L. W. Tichenor filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Orville Tichenor and Miss Gertie Park were married at the home of the bride on New Year's Eve by Rev. Wesley.

State Journal Burns.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 6.—Fire which originated on the top floor, gutted the three-story State Journal plant this morning, causing damage estimated at $35,000 to $50,000. The plant cost $75,000. The loss to the building is probably $5,000, fully covered by insurance. It belongs to Charles Keller. The State Journal Company carried about $40,000 insurance.

Thrice a Week Edition

New York World

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly

No other Newspaper in the World Gives so Much at so Low a Price.

The great Presidential campaign will soon begin and you will want the news accurately and promptly. The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features—serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first-class daily.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and THE HARTFORD HERALD both together for one year for only $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

156 PAPERS A YEAR FREE

Marvelous Offer Made By Atlanta Tri-Weekly Constitution.

BIG COMBINATION OFFER!

The Tri-Weekly Constitution is almost a daily paper; it contains all the news of the world worth knowing; pictures of people, places and events mentioned in the news, as well as cartoons and funny pictures; fiction stories, written by the best story writers of America, departments of particular interest to farmers, women and children—in short, it is the most wonderful paper in the entire United States, at its price, $1.00 a year.

The publishers are preparing to spend thousands of dollars during the coming year in new features for the amusement, instruction and entertainment of Tri-Weekly Constitution readers, and to introduce this great paper to persons who have never read it, they offer to give a year's subscription—156 papers—free of charge to each person who sends in a club of five yearly subscribers with $5.00.

The subscription price of the Tri-Weekly Constitution is only $1.00 per year, and with each subscription goes a choice of one from a splendid list of handsome premiums, many of which you could not buy at retail for less than a dollar each. Write to-day and send names of six of your neighbors for a sample copy of the Tri-Weekly Constitution and ask for our list of premiums and clubbing offers. A post card will be enough. Address, TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION, Atlanta, Ga.

The Tri-Weekly Constitution and The Hartford Herald both one year (four papers a week) for only $1.75. This includes any one of the splendid premiums, as for instance, pair of 8-inch Shears, Boys' Barlow Knife, Vest Pocket New Testament, Library Wall Chart, Handy Package containing 231 useful articles, &c. Send your subscriptions to the Hartford Herald.

CAUSE AND REMEDY.

Uncertainty of the immediate future is looked upon by many men of affairs, as a blockade to enterprise and business prosperity, and this blockade is now quite apparent throughout the channels of trade.

The Presidential Election; the efforts of Congress with no fixed purpose; Organized Labor as a new factor in politics; together with other matters of greater or less import, represent at this time a chaotic conflict of separate interests, to harmonize which is now the problem before the country.

All want Prosperity, Peace and Plenty. Read with care the Cincinnati Enquirer, a journal that prints all the news each day from every commercial center throughout the world. A barometer of causes and effects that points out, as a Beacon Light, the danger and the safeguard therefrom.

As well known, the Daily Enquirer is the largest in size and highest priced paper in the United States, yet cheapest, measured by quality and quantity.

The Weekly Enquirer, with the cream and digest of all the news, able and conservative editorials, market reports, methods and results from Government and State Experiment Stations, veterinary matters, People's Forum, choice literature, short and continued stories, non-sectarian sermons, general information, etc., with the exclusion of all matters of scandal and immorality, is today the Cleanest Weekly Family Journal obtainable. Each issue is alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

Solicitors for subscriptions make a handsome profit and increase the good influence of The Enquirer in the uplift of morality and industry, and for the betterment and welfare of the community. For terms write to The Enquirer, Cincinnati, Ohio. The Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer and The Hartford Herald Both One Year For Only $1.35.
